On several days all I could do was scan the distant boxes from the hedgerow through binocs, trying to see which boxes still contained nestlings crowding the entrances or being fed by parents. However today, 6/25, it finally appeared that most boxes were empty and not being attended, so I was able to make a partial inspection of the grid, carefully avoiding Boxes 5, 10, and 13 where nestlings near fledging could still be seen peeking out.
